

The Pillars Of Prosperity - Part 1

We in America enjoy a very high standard of living despite our relatively short 235 year history. It's amazing to think that in just this time, our nation has gone from a vast unexplored and undeveloped territory to a place what President Reagan called – “a shining city upon a hill whose beacon light guides freedom-loving people everywhere.”

The catalyst that helped grow the United States into one of the most prosperous nations in such a short time was the belief in and application of free enterprise.

The Pillars Of Prosperity - Part 2

Free enterprise is simply an economic system in which private business operates in competition and is largely free of undue government regulation. In this system, a voluntary exchange of goods and services takes place where the supplier and consumer both benefit from said exchange. It is only under these conditions that America will reach her full potential.

Only a free enterprise economy provides people with the opportunity to achieve financial success in meeting the needs of others. However, for free enterprise to work, these transactions must be free of government intervention.

The Pillars Of Prosperity - Part 3

The role of the government is to create an environment where individuals and organizations can create prosperity by meeting the needs of others. The Founding Fathers asserted that the rights to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness are given to us by our Creator and not by our government.

Governments exist primarily to protect those rights against abuse by others. Only in a country where the government protects the personal and property rights of its citizens can free enterprise succeed and flourish.

The Pillars Of Prosperity - Part 4

Our own history has shown that government intervention in the economy, usually on the behalf of a politically powerful group, results in misery, rather than prosperity, for most Americans. During the 1930's, misguided government programs thwarted economic recovery by forcing high wages and high taxes on businesses struggling to survive.

The result was widespread unemployment for the entire decade. We need your help to prevent another decade of misery created by misguided government disruption of the free enterprise system.

The Pillars Of Prosperity - Part 5

The Free Enterprise Alliance has launched a new website to educate Americans on how free enterprise and limited government are responsible for their jobs and their prosperity. It demonstrates through articles, books and videos that the opportunity for personal prosperity is only achievable in an economy based on free markets where government intrusion is limited and individual liberty and open competition prevail.

We must all do our part to make sure our families, friends, co-workers and neighbors know that protecting our free enterprise system means more jobs, more income and more wealth for every hardworking American.
